

Liability

To the extent permitted by law, and in the absence of any negligence or other breach of duty by YBS, YBS shall not be liable to any person for any damage of, loss of, or destruction to, any personal belongings (including, but not limited to, cash, phones, jewellery), howsoever arising.

Students are responsible for using any equipment at our venue, Ashville College safely and as directed.

Students must behave sensibly and follow any safety instructions displayed, or from Staff, so as not to hurt or injure themselves or others.

In the absence of any negligence or other breach of duty by YBS, the use of any equipment [at Ashville] is entirely at your own risk. Furthermore, in the absence of any negligence or other breach of duty by YBS, participation in [the Summer School] is at the Student's risk.

Any existing injuries should be fully disclosed when applying to attend the Summer Residential, or any other event organised by YBS. The Artistic Director reserves the right to request further information regarding the injury, and how this may impact a student's ability to train.

Students should not submit their applications to the Summer Residential or any other event organised by YBS, until they have read and understood the Rules, a link to which is on the application form and available, along with other YBS terms and conditions, via the policy section of our website: <https://www.ybss.co.uk/policy>

By submitting an application, students will be deemed to have accepted and understood the Rules.

If in doubt, please do ask us before submitting. You can do this via email on info@ybss.co.uk
